

NEW NOVEL BY EL PASO ARMY WIFE

Capt. Bash's Wife (Bertha Runkle) Produces Another Success.

"Straight Down the Crooked Lane," a new novel, is an army story, written by an army wife, well known to most of the officers stationed in El Paso. The author is "Bertha Runkle," which is only the maiden name of the writer; her real name is Mrs. Louis H. Bash, and her husband, Capt. Bash, is quartermaster of the Sixth Infantry. Capt. Bash has been stationed in El Paso for several months, but is now in San Francisco, on leave, visiting his wife and daughter, Frances, while the wife is celebrating the advent of her latest literary work. Mrs. Bash will return with him to El Paso.

Already Mrs. Bash has written and published "The Helms of Navarre," and "The Truth About Toluca." Both books had an immense vogue and the new story, which deals with the policy of "Watchful Waiting" in Mexico and the part the army has played in the Wilsonian role, promises to be as widely read.

"Straight Down the Crooked Lane" has settings in Mexico, in the Philippines and on the Mexican border, and one of the San Francisco papers, in reviewing the work, says that Mrs. Bash has often been named in the columns east, west, north and south, as well as in the Philippines, who is familiar with the "local color" so puzzling to civilian writers.

One of the advertisements by Mrs. Bash's publishers says: "Bertha Runkle's happy gift of unpretentious humor was never put to such steady use as in her new novel, Straight Down the Crooked Lane."

A cavalry company also will be recruited and will be aided by the cavalry arm of the national guard.

JAPAN PREPARES FOR CORONATION

Accession of Emperor is to Be Greatest Spectacle in the Nation's History.

Tokio, Japan, Oct. 5.—Japan is preparing for the accession of emperor Yoshihito to the throne, which is to be made a ceremony unparalleled in the history of Japan. All the big cities of the empire are carrying on preparations on a gigantic scale in order to provide for the health and safety of the thousands of Japanese and foreigners who will witness the accession ceremonies. In order to prevent hydrophobia along the coast, dogs have been killed in the city of Kioto since January 1.

The official program for the accession shows that the emperor and court will leave Kioto for the city of Nagoya, the emperor will proceed to Kioto on November 7. In Kioto, the ancient capital of the empire, will then begin a series of rites and ceremonies which never before in Japanese history have been witnessed by the people. For the first time their representatives will be present.

Three Great Spectacles Planned. Two of the most important functions, one at which the emperor announces his accession to the throne to the spirits of his imperial ancestors, and the other at which he proclaims his accession to his subjects, will be held on November 10, the day of the emperor's birth. The third great ceremony, known as the grand harvest festival, will be held in the late afternoon and night of November 14.

Succeeding functions will be three great accession banquets, on November 14 and 17, and visits by the emperor to the various ancestral shrines for the purpose of communicating to the spirits of his forefathers his felicitous accession to the throne.

Military and Naval Reviews

The emperor will return to Tokyo on November 27, accompanied by the imperial household, which will be especially transported to Kioto for the accession rites. Subsequent to his majesty's return, the city of Tokyo will hold a big celebration in his honor, and the prime minister and foreign minister will give banquets and receptions. A great military review will be held at the same time, and a naval review in Tokyo bay on December 4 or 5.

GET RIGHT ON LAND

H. W. Broadbuss Urges Land Owners to Cultivate Valley Land, Then Sell.

"I wish I could have had some of the land owners and farmers of the Rio Grande valley with me on a trip I have just taken through the irrigated valleys of Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and California," said Horace W. Broadbuss. "If the trip would have had the same effect upon them which it had upon me, there would be a marked change in the way in which lands are handled in this vicinity."

"In every irrigated valley I traveled through, and I made it a point to stop and investigate almost every one of them, I found the greatest prosperity and it was largely due to the fact that the land owners in those sections have been careful to put part of their lands under cultivation before offering them for sale and thus selling them to the right kind of settlers. In Montana, Washington and Oregon they are going on largely for dairying. The land is first cut up in five, ten, 20 and 30 acre tracts, planted to forage and each purchaser, who is carefully selected for his ability in the matter of handling cows, is supplied with an amount of seed as he can profitably handle on his little piece of land. Groceries have been established so that there is a ready sale for the milk on the basis of the Elgin price for butter fat."

Field Each Monday. The dairy farmers are paid every Monday morning for the milk delivered the week before and in turn are enabled to pay their bills, thereby getting the lowest possible cash price for the milk. The merchant is enabled to give them because of the rapid turnover of his capital and his utter lack of losses.

"If we could convert our fields into dairy farms as has been done in the country through which I have just been traveling, the prosperity of El Paso now enjoys would be a marked to the prosperity it would then enjoy. With our long growing season giving us double or treble the tonnage of forage which can be grown in that country and with our short feeding season dairy farmers here could count on almost double the profit that the dairy farmers of those sections can count upon."

Former El Pasoan

"At Seattle I found E. Stewart, an old time El Pasoan, formerly of the firm of Stewart & McNair, grocers on South El Paso street. Stewart left here about ten years ago and went to the state of Washington where he went into the dairy business. He is now a multimillionaire living in Capitol Hill in Seattle in a beautiful home. His millions are made in the dairy business. He is one of the principal owners of the Carnation Milk plant, which sends its product all over the world."

"Going from Denver to Cheyenne through the Cache la Poudre valley, I made a number of stops to investigate the sugar beet industry. In a distance of 30 miles I found six sugar factories representing an investment of $7,000,000, all required to take care of the sugar beets grown in this valley. The sugar beet growers are growing rich. Sugar beets will grow in these valleys and while dairying may be better for the average farmer in that his money comes in every week rather than once a year, still there are many farmers who might not like dairying as a vocation and who would be financially able to wait for the greater income sugar beets, though it did come in only at harvest time."

Armless Autoist Does Everything With Car But Signal For Turns

Driving a two passenger Oakland car from the Pacific to the Atlantic without the use of arms is a feat being performed by Frank E. Fithen, who arrived in El Paso Monday afternoon from California.

Fithen operates his machine with a steering wheel that reaches almost to his chin. He bends forward and inserts the ends of his arms in the circles that look like the circles on the automatic telephone, the remainder of the work he leaves to his feet which are doubly alert now that his hands are gone.

Fithen visits the police headquarters of all the cities he passes through and gets autographs of all the police and fire officials. Fithen holds a record of 58 miles an hour in his machine, he says. The car bears the number of 11,675 Florida and its starting point Tallahassee.

COURT HELD WITHOUT JURIES; OTERO COURT FUND EXHAUSTED

Alamogordo, N. M., Oct. 5.—The October term of the district court was convened in Alamogordo yesterday, Judge Edward L. Medler presiding, but with no grand or petit juries in attendance. Though there is no money in the court fund to pay for juries, the criminal docket is being pretty well cleaned up, and all civil cases that can be disposed of will be marked off the docket.

Five prisoners, who were held in the county jail, unable to make bond, to await the action of the grand jury, have entered pleas of guilty.

Cresceto Pena, charged with the murder of a sheep herder near the Mesquite flat near reservation on May 1914, said he desired to enter a plea of guilty of murder in the second degree. After the crime was discovered, Pena made good his escape and remained at large until about two months ago, when he was arrested by deputy sheriffs in Socorro county. He denied that he had stabbed the man in the face, saying he had merely walked on him. The court this morning sentenced Pena to serve 60 to 70 years.

TREAT CATARRH BY NATURE'S METHOD

Every Breath of Hyomei Carries Healing Medicated Air to the Infected Membrane.

Nearly every one who has catarrh knows how foolish it is to try and cure it with sprays, lotions, and the like. Temporary relief may be gained, but a cure seldom comes. Until recently your physician would probably have said the only way to help catarrh would be to have a change of climate, but now with a simple preparation called Hyomei you can carry a health-giving climate in your vest pocket and by breathing it a few minutes four times a day successfully treat yourself.

The complete Hyomei outfit is inexpensive and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler lasts a life time, and if one bottle does not give permanent relief an extra bottle of Hyomei can be obtained at any time for a trifling sum. It is more economical than all remedies now being used for the cure of catarrh, and is the only treatment known to us that follows nature in her method of treating diseases of the respiratory organs.

Kelly & Pollard have sold a great many Hyomei outfits and the more they sell, the more convinced they are that they are performing a service in guaranteeing to refund the money if Hyomei does not relieve.—Advertisement.
